The Lonely Monkey Monkichi

In a small village deep in the mountains of Japan, there lived a lonely monkey named Monkichi. He had always wanted to make friends, but the villagers were afraid of him. One day, Monkichi found a golden feather on the ground. It was shining brightly under the sun.

"This must belong to the beautiful bird I have seen flying in the sky," Monkichi said to himself. "I have never seen anything so special before."

Monkichi held the feather tightly and decided to visit the king of the village. The king was a kind man who loved horses and often helped those in need. When Monkichi reached the castle, he showed the feather to the king.

"Your Majesty, I have found this feather. I believe it belongs to the bird that sings the beautiful songs near our village," Monkichi said.

The king smiled and said, "Monkichi, you have done a great thing. The bird has been looking for this feather. She has lost it and hasn't been able to fly well since then."

With the king's help, the feather was returned to the bird. The bird sang a special song to thank Monkichi. For the first time, Monkichi felt happy because he had made a difference. The villagers, who had seen his kindness, finally welcomed him.

Monkichi has moved into the village now, and he has made many new friends. He has learned that kindness can change everything.
